"Students are eager to learn, technology is a facilitator for that learning, that students enjoy, that is fun and is challenging.

Last year one of my students answered a question to my principal, while she was using a smart board. The question was simple ""what are you doing?"" the answer was ""I'm learning"" my principal replied back ""How do you know you are learning? "" she answer back ""because I'm having fun while playing with the numbers that i know and didn't know."" This happened in a 2nd grade class. We need to understand that these resources change lives and help prepare our students for their future."
